Ubisoft will now control where Call of Duty and other Activision Blizzard games show up on cloud gaming services, with the exception of EU countries and the various cloud gaming deals Microsoft signed previously. If you live in a country that is part of the European Economic Area (EEA) which includes EU countries and also Iceland, Liechtenstein, and Norway then you will get a free license to stream via any cloud game streaming services of their choice all current and future Activision Blizzard PC and console games that you have purchased.

If you're outside the EEA, then it's up to Ubisoft which services get cloud streaming rights for Activision Blizzard games, including licensing these back to Microsoft to include in Xbox Cloud Gaming. In theory, Ubisoft could deny Microsoft a license for future Activision Blizzard games, but in reality, that's extremely unlikely to happen. Microsoft will need to pay a wholesale arrangement fee to license Activision Blizzard games for its cloud services, though.

Ubisoft Plus Our expectation is that they will be on Ubisoft Plus, and then we have the rights to be able to license them individually to companies as well, says Early. Perhaps there's a company somewhere in the world that wants to license those rights and add to the streaming service they have or start up a new streaming service, and I think that's going to be part of the fun of the next 15 years or more of how streaming evolves.
