ite the difference! So why does a minecraft day go by so much faster than a real life? It's not just about the time spent in the game, but the mental state you're in. When you're in the zone, time flies. This is a common experience for many gamers. The reason for this is that the game provides a sense of purpose and immersion. You're not just sitting there; you're doing something. This makes the time feel shorter. In real life, you're often distracted by other things. There's no clear goal, and the time just passes. So, it's not the game itself that's making time pass faster, but the way you're engaged with it. The same applies to other activities. When you're focused on a task, time seems to fly. When you're bored, it feels like it's dragging. So, it's about the quality of the activity and your level of engagement. If you're bored, even a short game can feel like an eternity. If you're in the zone, even a long game can feel like a few minutes. So, the key is to find activities that you're interested in and that challenge you. That's the only way to make time pass faster. It's not about the game, it's about you. You're the one who can control the flow of time. You just need to know how to do it.
